It is the fear that the government is going to use force to suppress dissent and silence all voices of opposition. This wall of fear is the result of the government's actions against the press and the people.

International traders in Asian rice markets said they were disappointed that the NFA's tender for 675,000 metric tons of rice failed to attract more than one bidder. The NFA's tender was the largest in the world, and it was expected to attract many bidders. However, only one bidder, Hanjin, submitted a bid for the rice.

Pagdanganan: Politics behind brod's killing

MANILA, Philippines—The killing of a prominent businessman in Manila last week was not just a crime, it was a political statement, according to a top government official. The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the killing was part of a larger scheme to control the city's economy and politics. He said the businessman was a key player in the city's economic development and his death was a warning to others who might challenge the current power structure. The official said the killing was a "message" to the public that the government was not going to tolerate any challenges to its authority. He said the government was determined to bring the perpetrators to justice and to ensure that the city's economy and politics remained stable.

Skyrocketing food prices hit Asians like a tsunami

MANILA—A tsunami of skyrocketing food prices is hitting Asia like a tidal wave, with prices of rice, oil, and other staples soaring in many countries.

The surge in food prices is the result of a combination of factors, including a sharp decline in rice exports from Thailand and Vietnam, and a rise in oil prices.

In the Philippines, the price of rice has risen sharply in recent months, leading to protests and food shortages in some areas.

The surge in food prices is a major concern for Asian governments, as it threatens food security and economic stability.

Figure 1 is a 3D bar chart illustrating the distribution of the number of children per family (x-axis, 0 to 10) across different levels of education (y-axis, 1 to 10) and different levels of income (z-axis, 1 to 10). The chart shows that the number of children per family generally decreases as the level of education and income increases. For example, at the highest level of education (10) and income (10), the number of children per family is 0. At the lowest level of education (1) and income (1), the number of children per family is 10.

Finance dep't backs move to reform NFA

Favors liberalized rice import policy

By James A. Reyes

MANILA, Philippines — The Department of Finance (DOF) has backed a move to reform the National Food Authority (NFA) to favor a liberalized rice import policy. The move is part of a broader effort to streamline government operations and improve efficiency in the rice sector.

The DOF is currently reviewing the NFA's operations and has identified several areas for improvement. One of the key recommendations is to allow for more flexible importation of rice, which would help to stabilize prices and ensure a steady supply for the population.

Local investors gobble up San Miguel Brewery IPO

Offer closes today, listing on May 12

Local investors have been gobbling up shares of San Miguel Brewery's initial public offering (IPO) since the offer was first made available to the public last week. The IPO, which is being underwritten by Citicorp, is expected to close today, and the shares are expected to begin trading on the New York Stock Exchange on May 12.

PMI awaits inflation figures

The Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank is waiting for the release of the Consumer Price Index (CPI) for March to see if it will raise its benchmark federal funds rate. The bank's president, Charles W. Calomiris, said in a speech last week that the bank is "watching the CPI very closely" and that it "will be ready to raise the rate if the CPI shows a significant increase." The CPI is a key indicator of inflation, and a rise in the index would suggest that the economy is heating up, which could lead to higher inflation. The federal funds rate is the interest rate that banks charge each other for loans, and it is a key tool that the Fed uses to control the money supply and inflation.

Plains protests 'transfer' of mining rights

Plains, Mont., is protesting the transfer of mining rights from the federal government to private companies. The protest is part of a larger movement to protect the environment and the rights of Native Americans. The transfer of rights is part of a program called the "Federal Lands Withdrawal Program," which allows private companies to lease federal lands for mining. The program has been controversial because it allows companies to mine on lands that are home to Native Americans and are often environmentally sensitive. The protest is being led by the Plains Indian Community, which is a coalition of Native American groups in the area.

Finance dept. backs

The U.S. Department of Finance has backed a plan to increase the number of federal judges. The plan is part of a larger effort to reform the federal judiciary. The department's support is a key step in the process of getting the plan approved by Congress. The plan would create 10 new judgeships over the next five years. The department's support is based on the fact that the federal judiciary is currently understaffed, and that the increase in the number of judges would help to reduce the backlog of cases.

SETEX draws S&P's

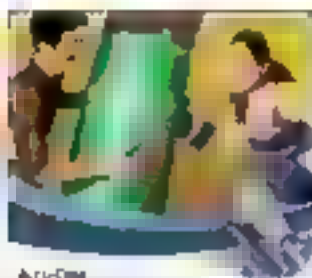

SETEX, a company that provides services to the oil and gas industry, has been downgraded by Standard & Poor's (S&P). The downgrade is from a "B" rating to a "B-". S&P cited concerns about the company's financial performance and its ability to meet its debt obligations. The downgrade could lead to a loss of confidence in the company, which could hurt its stock price and its ability to raise capital.

Closer ties seen to do Asia good

By [Name]

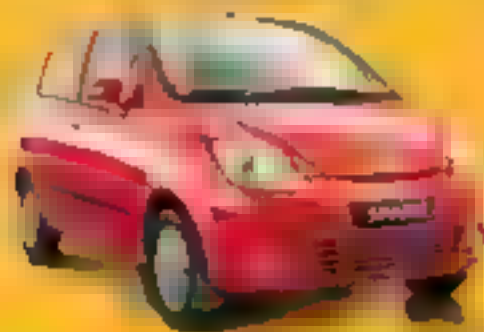

MANILA, Philippines — Closer ties between the Philippines and Asia are seen to do good for the country, according to a report by the Asian Development Bank (ADB). The report, titled "Philippines: A Country Study," highlights the country's potential for economic growth and development, particularly in the areas of infrastructure, human resources, and private sector participation. The ADB notes that the Philippines has a strong foundation for growth, with a growing middle class and a vibrant private sector. However, it also identifies key challenges, such as the need for improved infrastructure, particularly in transportation and energy, and the need to enhance the quality of human resources through education and training. The report concludes that closer ties with Asia, particularly through regional integration and trade agreements, can help the Philippines overcome these challenges and achieve sustainable economic growth.

AFLORIDA WOMAN who has been suffering from chronic pain for years has found relief through a technique called Bowen therapy. The woman, who is 55 years old, has been in pain for over 20 years. She has tried many different treatments, including physical therapy, chiropractic, and acupuncture, but nothing has worked. She has been told that she will have to live with the pain for the rest of her life. However, after a few sessions of Bowen therapy, she has found that the pain has almost completely disappeared. She is now able to move freely and is no longer in pain. She is very happy and grateful for the therapy. She has recommended it to her friends and family. She has also written a book about her experience with Bowen therapy. The book is called "Bowen Therapy: A Woman's Story." It is available for purchase on Amazon.com.

Bowen therapy is a non-invasive, non-toxic, and non-painful technique that uses gentle, rhythmic movements to release tension and improve circulation. It is based on the idea that the body has a natural ability to heal itself, and that the therapist's role is to help the body release its tension and improve its circulation.
